

Wild Policy:

a theory, method and activation

In this talk, anthropologist Tess Lea will speak to her new book, Wild Policy: Indigeneity and the Unruly Logics of Intervention (2020, Stanford UP). The book does three key things: it explains why policy will never be 'good' in Indigenous Australia; it creates a new framework for thinking about policy, anthropologically; and it demonstrates lively ways to write about arcane issues ethnographically. After briefly explaining the why and what of the book, Lea will explore how the concepts might be put to use.

Tess Lea is Professor of Anthropology and Gender Studies at the University of Sydney. Broadly conceived, her work focuses on the concept of dysfunction: to whom, what and where it is ascribed.

Details

Monday 29 March 2021

3 -4pm

Speaker - Tess Lea,

University of Sydney

Online FREE and open to all

Zoom Link

<https://bit.ly/2OEVSFr>

Meeting ID: 937 9210 4939

Passcode: 800615

Contact

Yasmine Musharbash

E : yasmine.musharbash@anu.edu.au

Matt Tomlinson

E: matt.tomlinson@anu.edu.au

W : archanth.cass.anu.edu.au

Australian National University